MORE THAN 15,000 TEACHERS PRESENT.

National Educational Association Meets in Boston.

Opening Session Was That of the National Council.

BOSTON, July 6.—When the first of the 50 sessions to be held in this city this week by the National Educational Association was opened at 9:30 o'clock today more than 15,000 teachers had registered for the forty-second convention of the association. Advices received indicated that other thousands were on their way, and those at the registration committee headquarters were prepared to accommodate, and were expecting that the total number ultimately would reach 25,000.

The association, which accepted the invitation of the teachers of Boston and the New England states to meet here this year, includes the most prominent educational workers in the country, many of whom will take part in the convention proceedings. The president of the association is President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University.

The program provides for sessions in 16 departments, besides general meetings every evening and business meetings on Wednesday and Thursday. The convention will close its sittings on Friday, but an extensive program of tours and excursions has been arranged for subsequent dates. The general gatherings will be held in Mechanics' hall. The other sessions will be held in seven of the Back Bay churches and in various halls and school buildings in the vicinity of Copley square, near which is the headquarters of the association.

The opening session today was that of the national council, which includes members elected to it on account of their experience and eminent service as educators. William R. Harper, president of Chicago University, is president. "The Voluntary Element in Education" was the subject of an address by Charles de Garmo, professor of science and art of education, Cornell University.

"Saving of Time in Elementary and Secondary Education" was the topic presented by Thomas M. Balliet, superintendent of schools of Springfield. Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, professor of education, University of Chicago, also spoke.

At 9:30 a. m. today, also, a session of the department of Indian education was held. H. B. Peairs, Lawrence, Kan., is president. At this meeting greetings were offered by Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Lieutenant Governor Guild and Dr. A. E. Winship, Boston, and Miss Gertrude Emmons, Lowell. Responses and resume of work of officials and co-workers were made. Hon. W. A. Jones, commissioner of Indian affairs, was among the speakers.

SCENE OF RUIN IN BRUSH CREEK VALLEY.

Damage to Property Will Not be Less Than $500,000.

Thrilling Rescues and Acts of Bravery Reported.

JEANNETTE, Pa., July 6.—Dawn broke today on a scene of desolation and ruin along the Brush Creek valley. From the sight of the broken dam at Oakford Park to Wilkerding, taking in the towns of Jeannette, Larimer, Greensburg, Irwin, Burrell and Manor, the awful power of the rushing water following the breaking dam is apparent on all sides. The damage to property will not be less than $500,000, while the number of lives suddenly blotted out is still uncertain, the estimates running all the way from 50 to 150. Almost with the first streak of daylight a bureau was opened here, where the names of the identified dead recovered and the missing were registered together with a description of the bodies recovered but not identified. A revised list of the dead and missing so far as known is as follows, but it may be days before the extent of the disaster can be determined.

The dead: Miss Gertrude Keefer, aged 24 years, Jeannette, body recovered; Kate Keefer, sister, body recovered; John Fleming, stable boy at Old Fair grounds, Greensburg; George Whitman, West Jeannette; Mrs. Levi Baker, West Jeannette; John McGurky, aged 40, West Jeannette; George M Williams, aged 33, Jeannette; Alexander Victor, Jeannette; Mrs. Nigga and four children, West Jeannette; unknown woman, found dead at Manor; unknown man, found dead at Pennsylvania; Edward Smith, 10, negro boy of West Jeannette; daughter of Fred Davis, aged 13, West Jeannette; Mrs. Schrader, aged 70 years.

The missing: Miss Lucy Crum, John and Lawrence O'Neal, sons of Mrs. Barney O'Neal; Curtis Moore, Jeannette; Samuel Vogel, Jeannette; Mrs. Henry Fink, Jeannette; Edward O'Brien, Greensburg; two sisters, West Jeannette; Alfred Seip, aged eight years, West Jeannette; May Bird, Manor hotel Jeannette; John Miller, 11 years, Lewisburg.

Council Manri and family of Greensburg were at the park, and at a late hour last night had not been accounted for. They are said to have been in the waiting room.

The people are still too excited to talk of the flood, and a complete death and injured list cannot yet be compiled.

Several persons are reported to be missing from their homes along the stream, and many anxious parents al-

NO IMMEDIATE DANGER FEARED.

In Spite of Slight Improvement the Pope's Condition Very Grave.

Able to Take Some Food With Appetite and Insists on Leaving His Bed.

ROME, July 6.—At 2:45 o'clock this afternoon the Pope seemed somewhat prostrated after a rather exciting morning, and is now enjoying much needed sleep.

At 4 o'clock a fit of coughing disturbed the Pope's sleep. Coughing might benefit him, by relieving the lungs of the catarrhal obstruction, but owing to his weak state it is very trying and exhausting.

At 5:45, for the first time since the Pope's illness took a serious turn, Dr. Lapponi ventured to leave the Vatican for one hour, on urgent private business. The fact aroused hopes that the pontiff is on the way to recovery, but his condition remains very grave, though no immediate danger is apprehended.

The Pope has taken some food with appetite. The slight improvement in his condition continues. While the danger is far from removed the feeling at the Vatican is calmer.

Another consultation by the doctors will be held at 7:30 p. m., after which a bulletin will probably be issued.

A SIGNIFICANT ACT.

Pontiff Appoints Secretary of the Consistorial Congregation.

ROME, July 6.—A bulletin issued this morning by the Pope's physicians is as follows:

"Although His Holiness passed the night almost without sleep, he is not so uneasy as he was yesterday. The Pope has been benefited by the injection of digitalis and camphor, and the condition of his chest is normal. There is a slight cough, with some catarrhal emission. Sufficient nourishment has been taken. The pulse is still weak, but not intermittent, and the temperature is below normal. The condition of the august patient, therefore, cannot be described as better, but it certainly is no worse."

The bulletin also states that the pontiff left his bed. Cardinal Oreglia, the Cardinal Camerlengo, is occupying rooms on the third floor of the Vatican, just above the Pope's apartment.

The amelioration in the Pope's condition was natural this morning, considering the gravity of his illness, and it was feared that possibly it was only the last flickering of the vital flame. During this brighter interval the Pope resumed his habits of command, and insisted on giving orders for the preparation of the brief, appointing Mgr. Volponi, secretary of letters to princes, as secretary of the consistorial congregation, a post vacant owing to the promotion of Mgr. Nocella to the cardinalate. The importance of such an appointment, especially at the present moment, is manifest when it is considered that on the Pope's death the secretary of state ceases to exercise his functions, which are assumed immediately by the secretary of the consistorial congregation.

As the Pope objected to having the oxygen inhaling apparatus continually under his nostrils, Dr. Lapponi arranged to impregnate the whole atmosphere of the room with oxygen. "That is much better," said the pontiff, "before I felt as though I had lost my liberty."

Although Dr. Lapponi continually recommends the patient not to speak and to pay no attention to what is passing outside, the Pope gently refuses to abandon participation in what is going on. He said, smiling, to Dr. Lapponi:

"I know you say this because of your affection for me; but either my last day is rapidly approaching, in which case I must employ all the time which is left to me so far as I can, or else I shall recover, again postponing the end. If this is the will of the Almighty nothing can change it."

The Pope wished his arm chair to be carried near his writing table, and then to the window overlooking the piazza of St. Peter. Noticing many people in carriages, the Pope said: "The piazza looks as it does when I am about to perform some public function."

Only two bulletins regarding the Pope's health will be issued daily, the doctors agreeing that there are not sufficient changes in his condition to chronicle them more often.

The Pope insists on staying up and walking at intervals, saying that weakness is the worst part of his illness, against which the best remedy is activity.

Dr. Lapponi's chief task now is the maintenance of the Pope's strength. [illegible] improvement was indicated this morning by the fact that the patient was willing to take nourishment, which was administered at short intervals and consisted chiefly of Bordeaux, champagne, raw eggs and broth. The doctor would permit the Pope to partake of anything in reason for which he expressed a desire, as there is special danger in the possibility of increased weakness.

The only persons allowed in the Pope's bedroom this morning besides the doctors in attendance were Cardinal Rampolla, Mgr. Bisleti, master of the pontifical chamber, and Brigadier General Count Camillo Pecci of the Noble Guard (a nephew of the Pope), who is staying permanently at the quarters of the guard. The Pope conversed for a long time with Count Pecci, even rising and walking about the room for a few minutes, leaning on his arm. The pontiff on this occasion remarked:

"Now I am ready to depart, having settled all my affairs. I feel I have done all in my power for the good of the church and of humanity."

The newspapers here contain many conflicting statements about the Pope and his condition. The Tribuna says: "He spends his time partly in bed and partly in an arm chair. Expectorating is the first sign thus far of any organic reaction, and it is considered to be a good symptom; but the Pope's weakness is increasing."

"No doubt," the pontiff is reported to have said, "I am near my end; but I want to die in harness."

Over 500 telegrams expressing sympathy with the Pope or asking for news of his condition arrived at the Vatican today, including messages from President Roosevelt, King Edward and Emperor Francis Joseph.

After receiving the sacrament yesterday the Pope said: "I am now near my end. I do not know if all I have done has been good, but I certainly obeyed my conscience and our faith."

The pontiff yesterday ordered that a plano be given to his grand nephews, also giving directions that they should be told that the Pope thought of them in his last moments.

The Giornale D'Italia says: "The improvement in the Pope's condition does not give hope of his recovery. He may live throughout the day, but it is greatly feared that a change for the worse will supervene this afternoon."

The feeling at the Vatican, however, is more hopeful this afternoon.

In Vatican circles there seems to be dissatisfaction because of the rumors in circulation to the effect that those in authority, instead of preventing the Pope from overtaxing his failing strength, have for their own purposes urged him, contrary to his physicians' advice, to further exertion. It has been hinted that those who might be eligible candidates for the chair of St. Peter would not have many regrets should the way be left open without more delay, and regardless of the pontiff's feebleness they worked upon his harmless natural pride in the vigor of his constitution at his venerable age to encourage him to preside at the two recent consistories, as well as to undertake numerous receptions of pilgrims and other visitors to the Eternal City, notwithstanding the precarious condition of his health since the operation of 1899, which had grown much worse during the last few months. Under the circumstances such insinuations are energetically repudiated by those concerned.

Cardinal Di Santo Stefano, dean of the Sacred College, who has established himself in rooms in the Vatican above the Pope's apartments, had a long conference with his secretaries today, and gave orders that various documents connected with the election of a new Pope be conveyed to the Vatican.

MAY LIVE FOR SOME TIME.

If the Pontiff Will Take Nourishment Every Hour.

PARIS, July 6.—A despatch from Rome says the doctors who are attending the Pope informed a Vatican official confidentially this morning that if the pontiff takes nourishment hourly he may last for some time, but that if he abstains from so doing for only three hours all will be over.

CONDITION STILL GRAVE.

Pope Takes Food Without Reluctance, and Mind Perfectly Clear.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The following cablegram was received today by the apostolic delegation from Cardinal Rampolla: "The condition of the holy father is still grave, but no worse. Night calm. Takes food without reluctance. Mind perfectly clear."

REGARDED AS HOPELESS.

Pope's Illness, at His Age, Must Inevitably Lead to Death.

BERLIN, July 6.—The Lokal Anzeiger's correspondent at Rome reports an interview which he has had with Dr. Mazzoni, and quotes him as saying:

"The bulletins tell the unvarnished truth. The Pope's condition, objectively considered, is hopeless. An illness like the Pope's, at his great age, must inevitably lead to death."

The Tageblatt's Rome correspondent telegraphs that it is impossible to keep the Pope in bed, and adds that nobody ventures to prevent him from getting up.

GREETED BY THE KING OF ENGLAND.

President Loubet Loudly Cheered in London.

Extraordinary Precautions Taken by the Police.

LONDON, July 6.—President Loubet, the first president of the republic who has ever represented the French nation as guest of the British court, arrived in London from Dover soon after 4 o'clock this afternoon, and was greeted at the Victoria railroad station by King Edward and the Prince of Wales, accompanied by the cabinet ministers and a host of other distinguished persons.

Long before the arrival of the presidential party an enormous crowd had occupied every point from which a sight of the visitor could be obtained. The station itself was handsomely adorned, special features being the plentiful use of the national French colors and of the monogram "R. F." (Republique Francaise), and an abundance of flowers in lines of red, white and blue.

The extraordinary precautions taken by the police for the safety of the president and his hosts even exceeded those adopted when Emperor William was here. Every holder of a ticket had to be identified before he was admitted to the railroad station, and also had to furnish evidence of his right to its possession.

King Edward wore a field marshal's uniform and the grand cordon of the Legion of Honor. The Prince of Wales had on an admiral's uniform. They awaited the King's guests on the platform. His Majesty stepped forward as the president alighted and repeatedly shook hands with him. M. Loubet, who was bareheaded, scarcely reached the King's shoulder. King Edward then leaned forward and introduced the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke of Fife, Premier Balfour, Foreign Minister Lansdowne, Field Marshal Lord Roberts and others, who were all in full uniform or court dress. M. Loubet then presented the members of his suite to the King, who warmly shook hands with them.

After an inspection of the guard of honor, the King and M. Loubet left the station and entered a state carriage, in which the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught were also seated. The vehicle, escorted by a detachment of life guards, was then driven through the crowded troop-lined and well decorated streets to St. James Palace. M. Loubet was loudly cheered everywhere.

LOUBET WELCOMED AT DOVER.

French Cruiser Escorted Through Double Line of British Ships.

DOVER, England, July 6.—French cruiser Guichen, having President Loubet on board, was sighted at 12.46 o'clock. Immense crowds of people lined the sea front, which presented a gala appearance, the decorations being on a scale far in excess of anything previously attempted.

When the Guichen was sighted the Shearness flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers steamed out to meet her, and escorted the French cruiser through a double line of British battleships and cruisers, extending two and one half miles, and forming the most impressive naval display ever seen off Dover. Each ship give the President a salute of 21 guns as the Guichen passed, and the bands in turn took up the "Marseillaise."

The Guichen anchored off Dover shortly after 1 o'clock, and exchanged salutes with Dover castle. The admirals and captains of the British fleet immediately went on board the French cruiser, and paid official visits to President Loubet.

It was 1:40 o'clock when President Loubet stepped ashore here and entered a reserved enclosure, brightly draped at the head of the stairs leading from the landing stage, where a handsome pavilion had been erected. Here the Duke of Connaught, accompanied by the French ambassador, M. Cambon, and a number of officials, to be in attendance on M. Loubet during his visit, extended King Edward's welcome to the president.

The Prince of Wales pier, at which M. Loubet landed, was lined with troops and as the president walked towards the pavilion a band played the "Marseillaise," and the thousands of spectators, assembled at points of vantage, gave the distinguished visitor, on his arrival in England for the first time in his life, an unmistakably cordial welcome.

The meeting between M. Loubet and the Duke of Connaught was most cordial. They shook hands and exchanged a few words, the duke expressing the King's pleasure at the president's arrival. The introductions followed. Subsequently the mayor of Dover presented M. Loubet with an address of welcome. The president's reply, which was his first speech in England, follows:

"Monsieur le Maire: I thank you for your complimentary welcome at the moment of setting my foot on the territory of Great Britain. I wish to tell you with how much satisfaction I have come over in the name of France, in response to the generous invitation of His Majesty, King Edward the Seventh, and to bring to this great nation, which is our neighbor, a public testimony of friendship. Great Britain and France have not only motives of interest for drawing together and coming to an understanding. They have both founded their prosperity on liberal institutions, and they have dedicated a like attachment to the maintenance of peace. Their accord, useful and profitable to themselves, cannot be less so to the progress of civilization and the welfare of humanity."

When these ceremonies were over the president and his party entered four state carriages and were driven to the railroad station, the entire route being lined with troops. At the station another guard of honor was mounted. With little delay the presidential party entered the royal train, and started for London. The whole railroad line from Dover to London was guarded by men standing within sight of each other.

REIGN OF TERROR IN EVANSVILLE.

Mobs of Blacks and Whites Threaten Violence.

Gun Stores Broken Open and Ammunition Seized.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 6.—Race prejudice between blacks and whites brought on a reign of terror here Sunday which has not ended. All last night and all day yesterday armed mobs threatened the lives of citizens. Gun stores were broken open and weapons and ammunition were seized by black and whites, the county jail is partly wrecked, an angry mob of 2,000 whites having broken into it to hunt for a black victim, the wall being forced with a battering ram, negro dives were ransacked and shot to pieces in the search for the blacks, and an armed company of drilled blacks marched through the streets, threatening the lives of all whites.

The governor ordered out troops to protect property and quell the disturbance, but they have not yet arrived. At daylight this morning 300 armed white men started for the powder magazine near the city to secure explosives, with which they declare they will blow up the entire negro colony of Baptist Town, a suburb of the city. The trouble, which has been brewing for months, came to a crisis Friday, when Lee Brown, a negro, shot and killed Patrolman Massey, who was trying to arrest him while bent on the murder of a man with whom he had quarreled. Threats of vengeance were followed by the surrounding of the jail. The negro was secretly moved from the city yesterday to Vincennes. Patrolman Massey died in terrible agony, and yesterday morning the crowd, refusing to credit the statements of the officials that the negro was not in the jail, began threatening as it increased in numbers.

Twenty-five policemen were mobilized in the jail, and repulsed the first attempt to force an entrance after the gates were crushed in. A telephone pole was used as a battering ram and the jail windows gave way. A committee was appointed to search for the negro, but its report that he was not there was not believed, and after forcing a breach the mob poured into the corridors. Finding its victim gone, there was a cry of "Kill the negroes," and arms were demanded.

A company of armed negroes, aroused by the race troubles, marched through the streets, shouting "Down with the whites," and threatening death to all if the negro was lynched. This started a rush for the gun stores by the whites. Three were broken open, and 400 rifles and revolvers with ammunition were seized.

From this time on throughout the night thousands of bullets were fired.

POPE LEO III NEAR HIS DEATH.

Sank Alarmingly During Sunday, But Rallied.

Last Communion Administered to the Pontiff.

ROME, July 6, 3 A. M.—"God's will be done. Who would have believed it, when only ten days ago I was presiding over a public consistory?" murmured, feebly, Pope Leo, as he felt himself late last evening sinking into a sleep which lasted about three hours, until excruciating pain brought the dying pontiff back to consciousness.

He groaned and complained of pains on both sides of the thorax. Tenderly Dr. Lapponi, assisted by Pope Leo's valet, Pio Centra, and the physician's second assistant, De Castro, lifted the frail form and, changing the position, succeeded in giving the patient some relief.

Though hovering on the brink of death the life of the pontiff is still prolonged by means of strong stimulants and concentrated nourishment, and while he is still alive his wonderful vitality may again resist and conquer the attack of this illness.

Late last evening, after the excitement of the ceremony of the last sacrament was over, the Pope seemed less restless, partly soothed by the religious service and partly by a dose of chloral, which was given to him in considerable quantity.

The pontiff is lying on a small bed drawn up to a window overlooking the piazza of St. Peter's. The chamber is very large and draped with green curtains. The only picture in the room is an antique Madonna, and the sole ornament a great ivory crucifix.

The interior of the Vatican during the early hours of this morning testifies to the conviction that the passing of Pope Leo is very near. The courtyard of St. Damaso is filled with the carriages of the cardinals. Cardinal Satolli drove to Rome from Frascati this evening, the beautiful carriage horses covered with dust and perspiration.

In the cortile are drawn up the carriages of the cardinals and many notables. Servants and messengers hurry across the court with bundles of huge wax tapers and with robes of the ecclesiastical dignitaries who are waiting within the palace. The antechambers of the palace were thronged tonight with princes of the church, high noblemen and members of the diplomatic corps.

Telegrams of inquiry have been received from several of the monarchs of Europe.

The Associated Press correspondent saw Dr. Mazzoni yesterday afternoon on his return from consultation at Pope Leo's bedside. The doctor said:

"The situation this time is certainly really grave, in view of the great age of the patient and his state of extreme weakness. However, the case is not yet desperate, especially with a man having such unexpected reserves of energy and vitality, which at the age of 93 is indeed astonishing.

"The exact definition of the Pope's illness is senile adynamic pneumonia, but His Holiness has not the least idea that he is attacked by any organic disease. In fact, he was not in bed when I went to the Vatican, but was seated in his usual armchair, where I am accustomed to see him every time I visit the palace. He believes that the oppression on his chest and the accompanying difficulty of breathing are merely the results of extreme weakness.

"As soon as he saw me His Holiness repeatedly requested me to turn my attention to the best means of restoring his strength, which he said was all he required, except a little fresh air. Now and then the Pope has recourse to his inveterate habit of snuff taking, saying that he finds it very refreshing.

"The weakness of the patient's pulse and his short and irregular breathing, gradually approaching to gasping, are the only external symptoms of any serious nature, but, as I said before, the Pope this morning was full of spirits and would not take a grave view of his own case.

"When I left him His Holiness said: 'Come again soon. I will try to give you a better reception.'"

During the afternoon the strength of the pontiff began to fail so rapidly and his condition became so critical that it appeared that only a few more hours of life remained for him. It was therefore deemed wise to advise him of his grave condition, and this was done with tender precaution. Pope Leo was thus prepared for his last communion, which was administered tonight, with the participation of all the cardinals now in Rome and the whole of the pontifical court.

The solemn, yet gorgeous, ceremony of administering the last sacrament took place at the bedside of Pope Leo. The central figure was the dying pontiff, whose long life's journey is nearly over, calmly preparing to enter the dark valley. His pale, emaciated face, almost as white as the pillows on which it rested, showed little sign of life, except the keen, glittering eyes, always his most striking feature.

Around the bed were grouped the Noble Guards, in their glittering uniforms; the knights of the cloak and sword, in their picturesque mediaeval costumes of black, with white ruffs; 25 cardinals, all the members of the sacred college who are present in Rome, stately and venerable figures, in their sweeping crimson robes, the whole forming a scene of rich, yet subdued, coloring, a fit subject for the pencil of Rembrandt.

The whole of what is called the pontifical family, headed by Cardinal Rampolla, and including all the private chamberlains, were there. Nearest to the bed stood the imposing, tall figure of the cardinal grand penitentiary, Serafino Vannutelli, with the Pope's confessor to hear the last confession of the departing pontiff. Then the priest apostolic approached bearing the viaticum to give the last communion and administer the extreme unction, assisted by the grand penitentiary.

Pope Leo feebly recited the confession of faith as formulated by the council of Trent, and finally the words of absolution and the formula of indulgence in articulo mortis were solemnly pronounced by the grand penitentiary. The heads of the great religious orders who were present granted the Pope the special indulgences which they have the privilege of conferring. Then came the touching prayers for a passing soul and part of the Gospel, the Lord's Passion.

As the last words died away, all fell on their knees. The Pontiff, raising his almost transparent fingers with a feeble effort, pronounced in scarcely audible word his benediction on the sacred college and on all present, and then sank back on the pillows. There was scarcely a tearless eye in the whole assemblage, the sobs of the Pope's relatives were plainly heard, and deep silence followed, only broken now and again by a murmured prayer or a pious ejaculation.

In the portion of the Loggia of Raphael, adjoining the papal apartments, were the families of Count Riccardo Pecci and Count Moroni, the Pope's nephews.

ANOTHER JOHNSTOWN HORROR.

More Than 100 Victims of Cloudburst at Jeanette, Pa.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 5.—Another horror, similar to that of Johnstown, occurred today at Oakford Park, near Jeanette, east of this city, when by the breaking of a dam, many people were drowned. It is impossible to secure details, as all telegraphic communication is cut off and the lines of the Pennsylvania railroad washed away. One report states that more than 100 were drowned, while another places the number at from 50 to 75.

Many bodies were swept away and are floating in the darkness toward the Monongahela river, while others were found crushed and bruised into unrecognizable masses, the victims having taken refuge in a building which collapsed. Still other bodies have been found, burned into blackened masses from having come in contact with live electric wires, which fell on the victims who were fleeing for safety.

The whole accident came so suddenly that the people were penned into a small space, and before they could make their escape many of them met their deaths. The dam which burst is located at Oakford Park, and was formed by the construction of a 40-foot embankment which dammed up a number of small streams. This afternoon 400 people assembled at the resort. The day had been a beautiful one, but warm and sultry. Very suddenly the skies darkened and a severe storm swept over the park. The rain began to descend in torents. It was the worst cloudburst ever known in this part of the country.

The people took shelter, many of them in the car barns near the park, while others huddled together in a small building which is occupied as a restaurant. Suddenly, while the storm was at its worst, there was a crash like thunder. Four feet of the dam had given away, and a wall of water 10 feet in height swept down upon the pleasure seekers who were caught in the little valley which forms the park. There is sloping land on either side of a small stream known as Brush creek, and to this higher land the terror-stricken fled.

Many of them, however, could not get away. When the wall of water was seen approaching there was a panic in the restaurant building. The 40 people who had taken refuge there made a frantic effort to escape, which resulted in the frail building collapsing. Some were trampled to death in the excitement which followed. While some were hurrying across the car tracks, the trolley wire fell and caught them in its meshes.

How many were electrocuted will never be known. A trolley car containing 50 or 75 people was crossing the bridge over Brush creek. The motorman saw the great wave of water coming and put on all the power at his command. It was another race for life, but the wave of water ran faster than did the current of electricity. When the car had reached the centre of the bridge the water struck it. The bridge was swept aside as though it had been a log, taking the car and its ill-fated victims with it.

A number of bodies have been taken from the car, but many others were washed down the valley. A volume of water about 40 feet high and between 400 and 500 feet wide swept through the narrow valley out of Jeanette, washing everything before it.

West Penn station, in Jeanette Manor and down as far as Pitcairn, is a scene of ruin. Hundreds of houses have been washed away along the borders of the creek, which parallels the Pennsylvania railroad and has its outlet at the mouth of Turtle creek and the Monongahela river.

Fortunately the crowd at the park was smaller than it had been for several Sundays. The ministers generally have in their sermons been warning the people against Sunday desecration in the way of trolley excursions and park going on the Sabbath day, and it is believed this had the effect of greatly reducing the attendance there today.

It will be several days before the flood subsides sufficiently to allow a satisfactory exploration. There was no staying the flood. The torrent coursed down through Jeanette and flooded the south end of the town. There was a great number of heroic rescues from flooded homes. Here Bull Creek joined its forces with Brush Creek, and together they continued on their progress of destruction.

Penn was the next victim. Here, in part of this busy glass town, the water was 20 feet deep and here there are known to be three victims. Great destruction of property resulted at Manor and Larimer and Greensburg suffered still more severely. The greater part of the latter city was under water.

At the Greensburg race track 25 valuable race horses were drowned.

THE GLOBE GIRDLED.

President Sends Messages to Governor Taft and Clarence Mackay.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 4.—A message from Honolulu states that the shore end of the cable has been spliced to the section extending to the city. The circuit of the globe has thus been made complete. Tests of the working of the wires were at once made, preliminary to the transmission of official congratulations over the line.

New York, July 4.—President Roosevelt sent the first message to Governor Taft over the Pacific cable at 10:50 p. m. and received Governor Taft's reply at 11:19 p. m. At 11:23 p. m. the President started his message around the world to Clarence Mackay.

The message of President Roosevelt was as follows:

"Oyster Bay, July 4.—To Governor Taft, Manila: 'I open the American Pacific cable with greetings to you and the people of the Philippines.'"

Governor Taft sent the following in reply:

"Manila, July 4. To President, Washington: 'The Filipino people and the American residents in the islands are glad to present their respectful greetings and congratulations to the President of the United States, conveyed over the cable with which American enterprise has girdled the Pacific, thereby rendering greatly easier and more frequent communication between the two countries. It will certainly lead to a closer union and a better understanding of each other's aims and sympathies and of their common interest in the prosperity of the Philippines and the education and development of the Filipinos.

"'It is not inappropriate to incorporate in this the first message across the Pacific from the Philippines to America an earnest plea for the reduction of the tariff on Filipino products in accordance with the broad and liberal spirit which the American people desire to manifest toward the Philippines and of which you have been an earnest exponent.'"

The message from Theodore Roosevelt to Clarence Mackay, sent around the world, was:

"Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 4. To Clarence H. Mackay, President Pacific Cable Company, Oyster Bay, N. Y.:

"Congratulations and success to the Pacific cable, which the genius of your lamented father and your own enterprise made possible."

The answer to President Roosevelt from Clarence H. Mackay, sent around the world, occupied nine and one-half minutes, and was as follows:

"To the President, Oyster Bay: I thank you deeply for your message and I earnestly hope that the Pacific cable, by opening the wide horizon of the great Pacific, may prove a useful factor to the commerce of the United States."

PROPOSED NEW THEATRE.

Plans Being Drawn for a Large and Handsome Playhouse on the Congdon Property.

The sale of the Congdon and Tilley properties on Broadway, which was announced in the News Friday afternoon, was to Julius Cahn of New York and W. B. Cross of Brockton, two well known theatrical managers, who propose to begin at once the erection of a theatre on the site, which it is expected to have completed ready for use in March, 1904.

Plans are now being drawn by a prominent theatrical architect, which will insure one of the handsomest theatres in New England. The interior will contain the best elements of the Empire Theatre, New York; the Jefferson Theatre, Portland, and the Illinois Theatre, Chicago. The stage of the new theatre will have a depth of 45 feet and a width of 100 feet, and the large auditorium will include 24 boxes. There will be a complete suite of rooms known as box club rooms, which will be on the Calvert street side of the building and will occupy the entire second floor, so that those using boxes will have a private entrance on Calvert street. They will be able to go from the apartments of the club to their boxes without entering the auditorium proper, and can also retire to the apartments between the acts.

The theatre will be finished in the Empire style. Retiring rooms will be provided on each floor, while in the auditorium will be spacious aisles, ladies' and gentlemen's retiring rooms and gentlemen's smoking room, all on the ground floor. The seating capacity will not be less than 1,600, exclusive of the boxes. Two large boxes may be set aside for the Army and Navy Club, but this, however, has not been definitely decided upon.

One of the main objects of this new theatre will be to accommodate large companies, as the capacity of the new building will allow any production to be presented in its entirety. The intention of Messrs. Cahn and Cross is to furnish entertainments at all seasons to suit all classes of the Newport theatre-going public, especially those who reside here all the year round. Plans are now being hurried by the architect, and as soon as contracts can be made work will begin. It is expected to open the theatre, if possible, while Miss Maude Adams is in the East, and she may be the opening attraction in March, 1904.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Fourth of July was quite generally observed throughout the town, either by family gatherings of various kinds, going away to join such, by fireworks in the evening, or by visiting Island Park. Of the first Mrs. R. D. Hall of Bristol Ferry entertained all her children, Mr. R. D. Hall and family of Boston, Mrs. Harry Sisson and family of Newtonville, Mass., Mrs. Albert Sisson and family of Providence, Mr. Frank D. Hall and family, Mr. Albert C. Hall and family and Miss Ruth D. Hall of Portsmouth. Mr. W. J. Elliott entertained his brothers and sisters from Newport, Middletown and Portsmouth, at a family picnic at his home on Glen street. Miss Lizzie Green entertained Miss Marjorie Knowles of Newport.

Mrs. Frank E. Rowell and family, with Mrs. Clara E. Dennis as guest, attended a family clambake in Adamsville, given by Mrs. Rowell's uncle, Mr. David A. Coggeshall, at which 90 were served with dinner, 30 of the number being guests, including some from New Bedford, Fall River, Westport Point, Tiverton and Portsmouth. A program of vocal and instrumental music, including piano and banjo playing, was a pleasant feature of the occasion. The grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Coggeshall, both over 80 years of age, were present and enjoyed the dinner as well as the youngest. Mr. and Mrs. Barclay Gifford spent the Fourth and Sunday with Mrs. Gifford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Dyer. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Fish of Dorchester, Mass., spent the Fourth with Mr. Fish's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence F. Fish.

Great crowds were at Island Park all day and evening, and the car service ran without a break and on time until evening, when a car ran off the track near Stone Bridge and refused to return until after two hours' hard work. The supper given by the King's Daughters, Thursday evening, at the home of Mrs. John A. Elliott, on the West road, was well attended, the house being comfortably filled and everything provided for supper was sold. The gross receipts were about $19, and the expenses small.

Miss Mary M. Craig, formerly a teacher in the Bristol Ferry district, left for Europe in the Saxonia of the Cunard line last week. She will not return until October, having secured a substitute for September, and during her absence will visit relatives in England and Scotland.

Miss Evans of Newport is guest of Miss Evelyn B. Chase.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wheeler are entertaining the Misses Page from Fitchburg, Mass.

Sanford Dittmer, the five-year-old son of Mrs. George F. Dittmer of Bristol Ferry fell from a stone wall last week, cutting the back of his head so badly as to require stitches to close the wound.

Mr. Clarence Pierce, motorman, who has just moved here from Middletown, while at work in the pit at the car barn, Friday about midnight, got a bad cut over the eye from a car which was started up without ringing the bell. He was put on board a car and taken to a physician, who had to take several stitches to close the wound.

A woman living near the new coaling station was wounded Fourth of July night, in taking a pistol from a child, and died Sunday morning.

Mr. DeForest Macomber, one of the Island road conductors, missed his footing on the running board Saturday and fell, striking the back of his head with great force against a post and lying stunned upon the ground. He was helped to the car and after a short time was able to resume his duties.

Mr. Jacob Almy was successfully operated upon at the Newport Hospital for appendicitis, July 4.

Everything looks promising for the lawn party in Tiverton to equal those of past years.

Mrs. Ida Brown of Middletown was guest, Friday, of Mrs. Harry Sherman.

Mr. Willard of Providence has been guest for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Chase.

Quite a number from this town attended the dance in Adamsville Friday evening.

Miss Bertha Chase spent the Fourth in Wickford, as guest of Miss Helen Brown.

Mrs. Charles Caswell is guest, for two weeks, of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Brigham.

Mrs. A. F. Marvel furnishes the following weather statistics for the week ending Saturday, July 4: Highest temperature, 91 degrees, July 2; lowest, 51, June 28 and 29; average, 69; total rainfall, .27 of an inch.

TO A GOOD BOOK.

[William J. Lampton, in the Reader.]

Come, friend, and sit with me;
We two are company
Who, in our calm retreat,
Need nothing from the street,
Nor opera, nor play, nor dance,
Nor club, nor dinner to enhance
The pleasure that it is to be
Each in the other's company.
You give me everything, while I—
I give you nothing, and I sigh
Because—what do you say?
I love you, and no other pay
You ask for your alluring cheer?
Is that enough? It is so easy, dear,
To love you that it seems to me
I give you nothing for your company.

FANCIES.

"What prevents the ocean from overflowing the land?" asked the teacher.

"It's tied," came a shrill voice from the tail of the class.—[Philadelphia Record.

"What did you steal that cradle for?" asked the police magistrate.

"Oh, just for a kid," replied the prisoner, who was lost to all sense of shame.—[Chicago News.

"Some mean sneak ran off with my umbrella today.

"With your umbrella?"

"Well, with the umbrella I've been carrying all week."—[Philadelphia Press.

Stern Father—So, sir! You want to marry my daughter, do you?

Terrified Young Man—Y-yes, sir; but not any worse than she wants to marry me.—[Chicago Tribune.

"What kind of furniture is a weather bureau?" asked the young man with wide ears.

And the sad eyed boarder answered: "I should infer that it is a sort of refrigerator."—[Washington Star.

Charlie Puff—Do you really believe cigarettes are dangerous?

Amber Pete—I should say so. Why, I've seen a tenderfoot shut in his tracks fur lightin' o' the things in McGore's saloon.—[Chicago Daily News.

Husband—There was a perfectly lovely woman in the theatre tonight, my dear. I couldn't keep my eyes off her.

Wife—Indeed! How kind of you to tell me!

Husband—Keep calm, my love, keep calm—it was yourself.—[Sydney, N. S. W., Bulletin.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torking as some red, white and blue celluloid circles dropped out of his vest, "I wish you would learn to play progressive euchre."

"Why?"

"Because if you win at that game you get something useful, instead of these little medals."—[Washington Star.

CURE FOR LYNCHING.

[New York Tribune.]

There are some evils which it seems impossible to banish from society except by battle and bloodshed. Perhaps the lynching mania is one of them. The germ has been allowed to spread through fear to hurt the "representative citizens" infected with it. One good blood-letting by officers in the performance of their duty and in defence of prisoners for whose safety they are responsible might have a wonderfully wholesome effect. Mob rule fattens on toleration. When officers play with lawlessness and treat rioters as "representative citizens" they encourage crime. If they treated them as outlaws, gave them a warning to disperse and shot to kill it would not take many experiments of that kind to establish over the whole land the dominion of law and the supremacy of the courts; and if things go on at the present rate before long that hard lesson will have to be taught. Our whole civilization is threatened. It is not alone the community where an outbreak occurs which suffers. Toleration of the evil in one place prompts imitation in others, until law is everywhere brought into contempt. The mania spreads, and the lynchers become more and more reckless. Those who at first would be stirred only to lynch some fiendish wretch soon find it easy to put violent hands on anybody who offends them, and thus this becomes a government, not of settled law, but of capricious passions. Better a few lawns strewn with the bodies of a hundred "representative citizens" than the destruction of our historic "ordered liberty."

Letter to George Stanhope, Newport, R. I.

Dear Sir: Shuffert Hardware Co., Hickory, N. C., bought a car load of paint; after selling it a few months, found out it measured seven pints a "gallon."

Returned it to the maker and credited customers with what they had lost from short measure.

What do you think of a short-measure paint? Don't you think it half whitewash? Half the paints are part whitewash.

Go by the name: Devoe lead-and-zinc. No whiting or clay in that; full-measure besides. A gallon Devoe is worth two of whitewash paint. Yours truly,

H. P. S. The Geo. A. Weaver Co. sell our paint.

THE IOWA IDEA.

The platform of the Iowa Republicans is obviously a compromise; it was inevitable that it should be that, unless Governor Cummins and his followers should yield absolutely to the national leaders of the party. If it were true, as said by Secretary Shaw, that Cummins had "slid down the pole," or as many Republican newspapers have said, that the Iowa idea was dead, the platform would have been such as the Eastern Republicans demanded, and there would have been no compromise. It is evident that there is enough tariff revision sentiment among Iowa Republicans to compel the extreme protectionists to yield something.

The platform recognizes the necessity of revising the tariff from time to time to meet changed conditions, and even to reduce duties that are too high. So far as a program of action goes, this amounts to little. Senator Hanna had to allow the Ohio convention to recognize the need of occasional revision of the tariff. Senator Hanna, the chief promoter of the "stand pat" policy, is perfectly willing to admit that the tariff ought to be revised occasionally so long as the revision is put off until some other time. Whenever public sentiment is such that there seems to be a possibility of advancing duties the extreme protectionists are impatient enough to revise the tariff; at other times they are confident that any discussion of the tariff would unsettle business.

But the fact that in both of these platforms it was admitted that the tariff ought to be revised sometimes, and that the Iowa convention went so far as to say that duties which were too high ought to be reduced, has this significance; it recognizes the existence of a considerable number of persons who desire lower duties, and whom it is deemed worth while to conciliate by holding out to them the possibility, the promise in a vague way, that at some convenient time the tariff should be revised. If the tariff revisionists in the Republican party are not very powerful, if they still yield to the extreme protectionists instead of openly fighting them, they are evidently numerous enough to make the extreme protectionists equally unwilling to fight them.

In a speech after the adoption of the platform Governor Cummins reiterated his belief in the reciprocity policy and promised to make every effort in his power to make his views those of the party. It is not likely that the governor is running his head against a stone wall; he knows the sentiment of his state pretty well; Speaker Henderson would not have drawn out of the Congressional campaign last year if he had not known that the tariff revision sentiment of his state was very strong. Governor Cummins accepts the tariff compromise plank prepared by Senator Allison, one of the most artful and adroit compromisers in the country, of whom Senator Ingalls said that he could run 10 miles over a corduroy road in wooden shoes and make no more noise than a cat, because he and his followers have no desire to break with the national party with which they are affiliated. But knowing the tariff reform sentiment of their state as they do, they feel it necessary in order to save themselves at home, to hold out some prospects of tariff revision, to say something about lowering duties that are too high, and especially to come out strong for the reciprocity treaties which the extreme protectionists in the Senate have killed. Evidently the Iowa idea is alive and at work.

EDUCATION AND THE WORLD'S WORK.

The value and the need of education for the highest success in life is being enforced in these days as never in the past. In all the history of the world there has never before been a time when the call for educated and trained men, for men of brains and ability and mental poise and equilibrium, was so urgent as it is today. The world's work is becoming greater and harder with every passing decade, and it demands the best men and women and the best that there is in men and women to perform the tasks that are set for them in this age of advance and haste and competition.

There was a time when it might have been safe to depend upon natural ability untrained and uneducated, and much that is of large and permanent value has been done in the past by such men and women, but it no longer appears possible or wise to leave strong intellect and sterling character undeveloped. It may be that in exceptional cases in the present and future, as in the past, such natures and such powers as these will in spite of lack of education and training take a commanding position in the world and do some portion of its work well, and even win unusual achievement; but in these days not only are men of ability needed, but more men of ability than in the old days. The world's work has increased as well as become more exacting and a multitude of strong men are demanded now where few were needed in other generations.

This is an age, too, in which competition is so keen that the man is handicapped who cannot do some one thing better than he can do anything else. It is a day of individuality and division of labor. The jack-at-all-trades is no longer a valuable unit in the world. The man who does something worth while in the work of the world now is the one who has discovered his natural bent and ability and has thoroughly educated and trained himself along that line, so that he can do that one thing better than he can do anything else and better than most or many of his competitors.

The man of today who does not educate his sons and his daughters to the highest extent of his ability to provide the education, and the highest extent of their ability to profit by it, is condemning them to levels of mediocrity in the next generation. And the world has no use for mediocrity in this age. It has no time to stop in its ceaseless round and wait for the workman of ordinary ability to catch up. It calls for men who are already prepared, and ready and eager for the task that will show their powers and skill. Education, training, development of all the powers of body and mind, of eye and hand and brain, is the preparation to fit men and women for the demands made upon them in these days, and that will be increasingly urgent as the days go by. It therefore behooves those who are not content to be in the rear or middle ranks to prepare themselves for the fray, and for those who do not wish their children to be handicapped in life to see that they are properly educated for what lies before them.

THE TRUSTS.

The trusts are going through the identical experiences that were predicted by persons who believed the form of organization was fundamentally unsound, but several of them are going through these experiences much earlier than was predicted. It was generally expected that they would sail all right on summer seas, but though financial storms have not yet come several of them have been wrecked and others are leaking badly, or have lost their masts. They carried too much "top hamper" even for a fair wind.

A few weeks ago the New York Journal of Commerce reviewed the trust movement for five years, showing that 10 of the combinations had become bankrupt, and about half their nominal capital was earning nothing; measured by the stock market quotations their values in the aggregate have contracted hundreds of millions. In the short time that has elapsed since that tabulation the shipyard trust has gone into a receivership under circumstances that leave no room for doubt that the constituent companies were making no such profits a year ago as they were said to be making, and on the strength of which the trust's securities were sold. As all these combinations are enormously overcapitalized, it is probable that misrepresentation of the value of the combined plants was not limited to this concern. In this same short interval, too, serious attacks have been made from within; that is, by stockholders, upon box board combination and iron pipe combination, and there has just been announced the re-organization of the New England Cotton Yarn Company, a combination of nine mills, with a capitalization of about one half of what it was before.

COLLEGE MEN IN BUSINESS.

A striking illustration of the change in the attitude of college men to commercial pursuits is afforded in the statement of careers selected by members of the Harvard graduating class. Out of 613 men, 137, not very far from one quarter of the whole, expect to go into business. This number is largely in excess of the number intending to study law, and it approaches the numbers expecting to study law and medicine combined. Indeed, the profession that draws the greatest number next after law is teaching. This is a very new profession. It used to be little more than a makeshift. It was not uncommon for college graduates to teach for a while after leaving college as the readiest way of obtaining an immediate living, and while some of the teachers saved up $200 or $300 and went to a school of law or medicine, or made a draft on the Educational society and went to a theological seminary, some remained in the occupation of teaching, a part of them because that was found to be the most congenial occupation, and a part of them because it is easier to stay in the rut where you are than to climb out of it and get into another. Now, teaching is well paid, and special preparation is required for it, as for law and medicine and divinity.

The large number of Harvard students who are going into business is probably explained by the large number of business men's sons who go to college, and who expect to go thence into their fathers' offices. It is not likely that many men go to Harvard as a preparation for business. It is an incident in their careers as the sons of rich men who are to succeed their fathers. None the less, it is an indication of the esteem in which business men hold a college education.

THE DEMOCRATS AND THE PRESIDENCY.

A Democrat who is said to be "way up" in the party councils has laid out the full program for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency next year. "The national convention," he says, "will be a ratification meeting. Cleveland will have been nominated by the people of his party before the convention is held, and when the delegates assemble no other name than that of Grover Cleveland will be mentioned, much less seriously entertained. A year hence the aggregate of Democrats who still cling to Bryan will be relatively very small; in fact, Bryan will be left standing practically alone. The party lash will crack merrily, the members of the party who have hitherto proclaimed against Cleveland will be admonished to get in line. They will be told that this is the year when all Democrats will get together and win, and the effect will be magical. Once more a united Democratic party will line up against the Republicans, and Cleveland will be elected."

Approximately 2,000 postal clerks in the first and second-class post-offices of the country have been promoted, beginning July 1, involving an aggregate increase of over $1,000,000 in the annual salary rolls. The allowances for promotion average only 40 per cent of those recommended by the postmasters several months ago. The investigations in the Postoffice Department are responsible for the comparatively small number of promotions allowed.

The death of Harriet Lane Johnston at Narragansett Pier recalls the days before the Civil war when she, as niece of President Buchanan, was the lady of the White House and presided over social functions there with grace and dignity, entertaining among other prominent guests the Prince of Wales, now King Edward of England.

The completed figures of the commissioner of immigration for the fiscal year ended June 30 last show a total of 888,245, or more than 100,000 in excess of the highest record in the history of the country, in 1883. The majority of the new-comers were of Hungarian, Italian, Russian and Greek descent.

They are still granting new pensions in Washington. Last year, in spite of the rejection of 113,720 claims, a still larger number, 132,529, were allowed. This number exceeded those of last year by 13,000.

Senator Hanna has disposed of his business affairs in such a way as to leave himself care free, and will, it is expected, play the political game from now on as it has never been played before.

Boston is in the hands of 20,000 teachers who from all parts of the country are attending the convention of the National Educational Association.

And now they tell us that mosquitoes may be paralyzed by music, if we only get the right tune. Wonder if it isn't "Mr. Dooley."

It was a glorious Fourth.

ORANGEADE.

[Harper's Cook Book Encyclopedia.]

Impregnate a few lumps of loaf sugar with the oil of orange by rubbing into them as much as you can readily from the rind of four oranges. Roll as many oranges as you design to use, squeeze the juice, allowing eight to one quart of water. Throw the skins into half a pint of water as you squeeze them, let them stand a short time, press them a little, and add this water to the other juice. The very highest flavored oranges should be selected, and if not found sour enough to impart an agreeable acid, lemon juice may be added, with the caution that it must not be used freely enough to impair the distinct flavor of the orange. The oil should only be slightly rubbed from the oranges. Allow about one-half pound of sugar to the quart of orangeade.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

News and Notes of Interest and Importance from All Parts of the State.

Rhode Island is the only state of the New England group which has not been remembered by Andrew Carnegie in the gift of a library, and it is possible that this omission may be remedied before long, if the appeal of the public libraries of the town of Cranston is approved by the millionaire. There are four public village libraries in Cranston—at Edgewood, Auburn, Arlington and Oaklawn. Some time ago a suggestion was offered to a man prominently connected with the Edgewood institution that Mr. Carnegie might be glad of a proposal to contribute to the good cause in Rhode Island, and shortly afterward a meeting of representatives of all four libraries was held, at which a committee was appointed to lay the matter before Mr. Carnegie. A letter was written to his secretary, stating the facts in the case. After a proper delay, Mr. Carnegie's secretary replied with a suggestion that further details be given of local conditions. Accordingly Joseph A. Latham drew a map showing the layout of the town, and the necessity for four buildings instead of a large central one, was set forth. Since this letter was forwarded nothing has been heard from Mr. Carnegie or his secretary. The reason for the delay probably lies in the fact that there are many applications for help on hand, which are taken up in order.

Friends in Woonsocket have received information to the effect that Lieutenant Earl C. N. Pierce has forwarded his resignation to the Secretary of War. He is a second lieutenant in the Fiftieth coast artillery, stationed at one of the posts near New York. He served as a sergeant in the First Rhode Island, went to the Philippines as sergeant major, came back as a second lieutenant of volunteers and was later appointed second lieutenant in the regulars.

While on her way to Knightsville with a load of milk last week Mrs. Lydia Walker of Fiskeville was thrown from the wagon, her skull crushed under the hoofs of her horse and other injuries suffered, which resulted in her death. The accident occurred on the hill near what is known as the "Ore Bed Four Corners" on the Phenix road in Cranston, about a mile west of Oaklawn. Mrs. Walker, who was a widow and a sister of Charles Brayton of Fiskeville, had undertaken to drive to Knightsville with a wagon load of milk. The harness put on the horse is said to have been the same used on one of the farm horses for another purpose, and not to have been properly adjusted to the one harnessed to the milk wagon. When the hill, near the Centey place, was reached, the horse became unmanageable and started to kick and run. Mrs. Walker, who was an invalid, clung to the reins and tried to stop the frightened animal, but was unable to control it. The horse ran into the gutter and pulled its driver over the dasher under its hoofs, where she was literally kicked to death.

Mrs. Harriett Lane Johnston, niece of President Buchanan, and widow of the one-time minister to England, Henry Elliott Johnston of Baltimore, died Friday at Narragansett Pier. Mrs. Johnston had been ill for a year past and two weks ago or more was taken from Washington to Narragansett Pier in the hope that the stimulating salt air would at least prolong her life. But she failed rapidly after arriving there. The body was taken to Baltimore today for interment beside those of her husband and children.

Mrs. Eleanor Sheldon Knight, one of the oldest residents of this state, died last evening at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Joseph M. Walling, in Providence. Mrs. Knight had been ill for six or seven weeks previous to her death. Her last birthday, the ninety-fifth, was the occasion of an elaborate celebration, which occurred in the same house in which she died. Up to the time of her death, Mrs. Knight was the oldest in a family that consisted of five living generations, and four of these generations joined in the celebration of last February. At that time she was active and bright. Mrs. Knight was Eleanor Sheldon. She was born in Scituate and lived there for a great part of her life. She was the youngest of ten children and was the sole surviving member of the family. Enumeration of Mrs. Knight's family shows four children, eight grand children, 11 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

THE VALUE OF SHRUBBERY.

[L. H. Bailey, Country Life in America.]

The value of shrubbery really lies less in its bloom than in the foliage and the general character as to form and "habit." Many shrubs have merit in both flowers and foliage. Of such is the Japanese quince. In spring the bush is on fire with flowers; in summer, if the brush is not sheared, the habit and foliage are good. The forsythia, however, while excelling in early spring bloom, has a thin and sparse summer effect that lacks both strength and individuality. Therefore, it is well to make the forsythia an integral part of a shrubbery-mass, in order that its summer aspect may be blended with other foliage. Roses are rarely good for shrubbery effects. They are essentially flower-garden subjects, valued for their bloom alone. They do not produce their best bloom when massed with other shrubbery. Therefore, it is best to grow them in a place by themselves, and in rows, where they may receive the best of care. There are some exceptions to these remarks in the case of the Japanese rugosa rose and some of the well as good flower-bearers; but even in these the blooms are secondary.

The whole subject of purple-leaved, yellow-leaved, variegated-leaved and cut-leaved shrubs may be considered in this connection. These objects should always be more incidents in a place. They are curiosities. When planted sparingly and near some shrubbery-mass, some of them give very pleasing effects, adding richness and emphasis to the group; but it is always easy to use too many exclamation points.

NOT A GOOD DAY FOR THE TEST.

Many Carpenters at Work But Painters Nearly All Out.

Contractors Claim They Are Strongly Organized to Resist Union Demands.

The workmen employed by M. McCormick were called off this morning, including carpenters, painters, plumbers and electricians. The jobs affected are those at Mrs. Pearson's and at "Gray Crag."

The contractors of the city at last consider themselves in a position to treat with the labor situation, and their arrangements, they say, promise to give union men an opportunity to enjoy a long vacation if they insist upon demanding union restrictions. The contractors assert that they have not taken these steps to persecute the labor men but for the purpose of self-preservation, the union methods being so harrassing that they could not continue to do business under them. It is not their intention, they say, to shut down building operations in Newport, for they are ready to take all the work offered them and consider that they will be in better position to do this work from today on than they have been for months past.

The contractors propose to give Newport men the first option on the work, and thus Newport labor will not be locked out. But if the local workmen do not see fit to work under the rules adopted by the contractors out-of-town men will be employed, and it is said that arrangements have gone so far as to make preparations for bringing into the city all the men that may be required for the various branches of work. The contractors do not pretend to say that their men cannot belong to any organization they choose, but if they do belong to the union they must make some sacrifices for their preferences.

The contractors are organized under an act of incorporation, as the Building Trades Association, and it is their claim that they comprise all the contractors of the city, who are bound together by rules which they have all personally signed, and heavy penalties are provided in case any of the members break from the rulings of the general association. They do not increase or shorten the prevailing hours of labor, but the various branches of the association arrange differing rules for treating their individual classes of men. For instance, non-union carpenters are to receive $3 per day while union men are to be employed for only $2.75. The carpenters and painters' associations are not to allow walking delegates or agitators upon their jobs and in case these labor officials insist in coming on the jobs they will have to face proceedings for trespass.

This stand by the contractors has not come unannounced, for something of the kind has been expected for weeks. Just how thoroughly prepared labor is to meet it remains to be seen and may not be determined for some time. Expecting some sort of trouble for today, many men arranged long ago for a vacation at this time and at present are quite content with the situation, though some say they want only a week or two.

This morning did not open with the right weather to test just what would be the result of the stand taken by the bosses, for not being suitable for out-of-door labor the men could not have gone to work in large numbers. As it is, the contractors claim that men enough appeared at the shops to carry on the inside work they had to do, and had the day been fair they have no doubt but many more would have appeared.

The carpenters' union has not yet taken specific action upon the situation, but yesterday many of the men announced that they would stand by their bosses and would appear as non-union men to secure the advantage of the extra 25 cents per day offered for that class. As all but one shop are on the open list, of course the men can go to work in none but this one without severing their connection with their union, though their organization has not taken definite action.

The painters find the situation a little different, for by the ruling of the painters' association none but non-union men will be employed, and instead of $3 a day the pay has been reduced to $2.75. Yesterday afternoon the painters' union held a meeting to consider the situation and decided to stand together and not go to work. There are of course some breaks in their ranks this morning. This was to be expected, perhaps, but as said before the day is not one to show just what will be done.

The painters' association is inclined to take exceptions to the union's stand in the matter, as it is claimed that the union men base their grievence upon an act of a defunct organization rather than the present one; also that after the bosses came to an agreement with the union Newport was advertised in the official bulletin as an unfair city, and that too after the attention of the local officials was called to the fact. The employes say their stand is not a question of wages but because they are forced to escape oppression and dictation.

The trades association, the general body which is to control the acts of the bosses of the various trades, will meet tonight to elect officers and a few days will be given the local workmen to come to work under the association's rules before labor will be imported to fill the vacancies which may then exist.

THE PAINTERS' SIDE.

Reject the Masters' Proposition and Refuse to Work Except Under Old Conditions.

The painters' union offers its side of the situation to the public through the following communication which Mr. McGarvey of the press committee has furnished to the News:

The local union through its press committee, consisting of Messrs. J. J. McGarvey, J. B. Edwards and Alexander Walker, has authorized the publication received from the master painters March 15, 1902, in response to a demand made by the Local No. 534 February 4, 1903, asking for a minimum rate of 35 cents per hour for an eight-hour working day. The communication in full is as follows:

F. J. Cornelius, Recording Secretary Local Union, No. 534, B. of P. D. and P. of America:

Dear Sir—At a meeting of the master painters of this city held March 14, a permanent association was formed whereby we shall be able to act in conjunction with the local union in a more intelligent manner, which we hope will result to our mutual benefit. In reply to your communication of February asking for an increase of wages, on and after April 1, 1902, at the rate of 33 cents per hour; $2.50 per day of eight hours, overtime on week days, time and a half, and Sunday work double time, we beg to say with all due respect to the union, which we are heartily in favor of and which should be supported, we feel that the increase of wages asked for on such short notice is not doing justice to your employers or to the union you represent. Many of the former if not all have most of their spring work figured and many jobs were taken last fall at the present scale of wages.

You will readily see the position in which we stand in the matter and we hope you will act in harmony with us, as much depends on your action. Realizing these facts and after due consideration it was decided that the following resolutions be adopted:

First—That on and after April 1, 1902, eight hours shall constitute a working day.

Second—That the maximum rate of wages shall be 31½ cents per hour and $2.50 per day.

Third—That overtime on week days shall be paid for at the rate of time and a half and Sunday work will be paid at the rate of double time.

Fourth—That we congratulate you on forming a union of the brotherhood, and we trust you will succeed in getting in all the first-class journeymen painters, and by so doing we then can act in co-operation with you and employ no one but a union man and compel all non-union men to join if they expect work.

We hope our decision in the matter will meet your hearty support, whereby peace and harmony will prevail.

Yours very respectfully,
W. P. Hayman,
Recording Secretary.

At a conference between the committee of Local No. 534 and the master painters held March 27, 1902, the committee accepted the above proposition, it being naturally understood that a demand for an increase of wages should be submitted to the master painters in ample time to make all contracts for the season of 1903.

Resting on this assurance Local No. 534 notified the master painters September 2, 1902, that on and after March 1, 1903, they would ask that the rate of wages should be $3 for an eight-hour day, which was accepted by the master painters.

While demanding ample time before Local No. 1534 should ask for any change in the rate of wages, on July 3 they informed the men employed by them that on and after July 6 the highest rate of wages paid by them would be $2.75 per day and severing all connections with Local Union No. 534.

At a largely attended meeting held Sunday, July 5, the members unanimously voted to reject the proposition of the master painters and refuse to work under any other conditions than those existing previous to July 3.

A number of assurances from general contractors and master painters not allied with the Master Painters or Builders Association, who claim they are perfectly satisfied with the existing conditions and who have guaranteed their support, were received and read.

Local No. 534 of Painters will notify the public through the columns of this paper the names of the builders and painters that find the existing rate of wages and hours agreeable to them, and who are ready to finish any work that is uncompleted in the city at the present time caused by the association of master painters endeavoring to reduce the wages of their former employes.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The Fourth of July was observed here Saturday, as usual. The stores were all closed in the afternoon, the postoffice observed holiday hours and the flags were flying from all the staffs in the town. The hotels provided special menus in honor of the day, that of The Thorndike being specially elaborate. In the evening there were displays of fireworks at the cottages of George H. Huhn, Jr., W. W. Gibbs, J. A. Bonsack, Edward Mallinckrodt, Ephron Catlin and others.

Glass Littlefield, son of Mr. Frederick Littlefield, sustained a painful injury while handling a blank cartridge pistol. A shell had become stuck and in endeavoring to get it out the cartridge was exploded and the powder entered his thigh, making quite a serious wound, which was dressed by Dr. Birney. The young man is reported to be quite comfortable today.

Friday evening the Jamestown Brass Band gave an open air concert on the lawn in front of the Gardner House. The streets and piazzas were well filled by an audience that was both surprised and delighted with the manner in which the program was rendered. The band is doing good work and making many friends.

SCENE OF RUIN IN BRUSH CREEK VALLEY

most frantic with fear, traversed the streets all night searching for their lost children. Up to an early hour this morning, many children have been found, but a few are still missing, who may have been drowned.

Stories of thrilling rescues are heard on all sides, and many acts of bravery are reported, the heroes being persons who risked their lives to save others. One man whose name could not be learned was seen by several persons to attempt to rescue a woman, presumably his wife, shortly after the flood hit the waiting room. The man was in an apparently safe position among some saplings. In his struggles to get the woman he lost his hold, and both were swept away with the torrent, and probably lost.

At 10 o'clock this morning it was estimated that the loss of life through yesterday's cloudburst and flood at Oakford Park will reach 75. Twenty bodies have been recovered.

At South Jeannette a resetting party was organized immediately after the wall of water passed. This party saved fully 150 persons, who had been thrown into the streams by their houses being overturned.

The death of Mrs. Schrader was most tragic. A number of people saw her house swept from its foundations. They had seen her open the front door and retreat before the brush of the water. When the house was floating in mid-stream persons who were watching it suddenly saw the shingles of the roof fly off. With a piece of board the frenzied woman was trying to get on the roof. Her strength soon failed, however, and with uplifted hands she fell back into the water-filled house. It was broken up shortly by being struck by others, and the body of the drowned woman was seen to float out in the stream and disappear.

Four members of the family of William Nigga, a coal miner, were drowned in the flood. The father was visiting a near-by friend. With the first rush of the waters the wife screamed, and her six children all collected around her. In vain did the father attempt to get to his home to rescue his family, but was forced to see all swept away. As the house speeded down stream it was smashed by heavy timbers, and the seven occupants were hurled into the water. With the aid of a friend, the father was able to save his son Adam, aged 15 years, John, seven, and Susie, 12.

Almost together with the dam in Oakford Park, the Fort Pitt dam, about half a mile north of this place, gave way, carrying with it destruction along the valley of Bull Creek, which empties into the larger stream of Blush Creek, in the lower part of Jeannette. To add to the alarm caused by the disaster in Oakford Park, it was reported today that the big reservoir of the Westmoreland Water Company at Radebaugh, about a mile from this town, was likely to give way, and that the people in the vicinity had taken fright and fled to the uplands.

HALF A MILE AHEAD.

Shamrock III Has the Advantage at the First Mark.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The Shamrock III left her moorings in Sandy Hook bay at 11 o'clock this morning and was followed a few minutes later by the Shamrock I. The wind was west-southwest, blowing about 10 knots an hour. Prospects were bright for a good trial sail. On going through the main ship channel, the yachts kept together. After they had passed the bell buoy off the pitch of the Hook, the Shamrock III slowly forged ahead.

At noon the Erin set course, letters "A. Q. S." for a course east by north. The Shamrock III went over the starting line at 12:17, followed closely by the Shamrock I. The new challenger wore a mainsail, clubtopsail, jib and large jibtopsail. The old boat carried a babytopsail instead of a large one.

At 1 o'clock the yachts were nearing the first mark, the Shamrock III leading the older boat by fully a half mile. This lead turned into a broad reach instead of a run, which was intended at first. The wind shifted a few points toward the west.

NOBODY HURT.

This afternoon one of the guys to the mast from which the boom for hoisting coal out of vessels is operated at the Reynolds wharf gave way, and the whole affair went by the board and landed upon the deck of barge Nassau, which was discharging. No one was hurt. The young man running the hoisting engine heard something crack just as he started a bucket up. He let the bucket run back and then shouted a warning, and the men in the hold were able to shelter themselves before the big stick fell. The mast was rotted through and the boom was in none too good condition.

W. K. VANDERBILT, JR., INJURED.

A cable from Paris says: The condition of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., who was injured by an explosion of an automobile lamp Friday evening, is said not to be serious but one of his eyes is damaged and he is kept in a dark room of the Hotel Ritz. Mr. Vanderbilt, by his doctor's orders, refuses to see visitors.

While Mr. Vanderbilt was touring near Paris something went wrong with his machine, and Mr. Vanderbilt himself got down to investigate the matter. While he was lying in the road, partly under the machine, there was a sudden flash and an explosion. The chauffeur assisted Mr. Vanderbilt from his position, and it was seen that he was badly scorched. Another vehicle was secured, and Mr. Vanderbilt was taken immediately to Paris.

STRUCK AN UNCHARTED REEF.

United States Transport Sumner Beached Off Island of Luzon.

MANILA, July 6.—United States transport Sumner, having on board the Fourth Infantry, struck an uncharted reef and her forward hold filled rapidly, necessitating the vessel being beached. The Fourth Infantry was on its way to various stations in the island of Luzon.

The Sumner was beached in seven feet of water near Mauban, province of Tayabas, island of Luzon. The quartermaster's department has dispatched two inter-island transports to continue the destribution of the Fourth Infantry, and to bring the Twenty-sixth Infantry to Manila, where that regiment will embark on transport Logan and sail for San Francisco.

The Sumner will probably go to Hong Kong for repairs, as several of her forward plates are broken. The accident upset Major General Davis's plans, as he intended to sail on the Sumner for New York.

REIGN OF TERROR IN EVANSVILLE.

One negro woman is known to be dead, and a boy named Logan was shot and seriously wounded by a negro. The mob shooting went through the streets inhabited by negroes, and did not stop to inspect its work, and the excitement and confusion have prevented bodies from being searched for dead and wounded.

The mob after leaving the jail, on finding that the negro Brown was gone, broke into the gun stores of Boettticher & Kellogg, Willerding & Co., and E. M. Bush & Co., and after thoroughly arming all rushed through the streets hunting negroes. The armed company of negroes had disappeared. All blacks fled from the streets, and failing to find victims the resort of Bud Fruit was visited and shot to pieces. Whether any were killed there is not yet known. The march to Baptist Town was then begun, and as dawn began to break the mob was rushing toward the powder magazine near the city for powder with which to blow up the negro colony.

Throughout the night the officials were powerless. The negroes after the first armed display of resistance scattered and have not made a stand since. They are flying in terror. Thousands of shots were fired during the night.

The riot began growing still worse at 4 o'clock this morning. The police sent after the mob, which started for Baptist Town, telephoned to headquarters that they were powerless, as the mob was armed with rifles and they had only revolvers.

Just after dawn the mob began bombarding the houses of colored people in Baptist Town, and the police had reports of many people wounded in the battle that followed, and that there were probably some deaths. No names were obtained. The mob has started for them again just opposite the city, and the police think they have secured some more ammunition. There is an unconfirmed report that several banks have been blown up. Efforts to get the militia together are in progress.

Captain Bronke of the police force reported this morning that there was little possibility of peace. The crowd of negroes that started the trouble is thought to have been organized at Bud Fruit's place. The captain thinks Fruit incited the negroes to go to the defense of Brown, who the mob thought was confined in the jail.

The mob that moved on Baptist Town early this morning riddled the dives with bullets, and it is thought a few person were killed and several injured. The rioters were unable to get into the powder magazine, though an attempt was made to do so.

TRUTH versus SENTIMENT.

There's now and then a soul that asks,
"Why don't the bakers make
The good, old fashioned, home-made loaves
Our grandmas used to bake?"
The reason is—let truth be spread!
('Tis always best to tell it.)
If bakers made that kind of bread,
Alas! they couldn't sell it.

RHODE ISLAND CINCINNATI.

Annual Fourth of July Meeting and Election of Officers.

Report of Committee Awarding Medal for New Tune for "America" Accepted.

The annual meeting of the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati was held at the old state house, Providence, Saturday, members being present from all parts of the country. The meeting was called to order by Colonel Asa Bird Gardiner, the president. Prayer was offered by the chaplain, Rev. Henry Barton, D. D. Secretary George N. Olney of New York called the roll, showing that 19 members were present. The regular order of business was laid aside and Hon. Elisha Dyer, elected to membership at a previous meeting, was allowed to sign the roll and admitted. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved.

The report of the standing committee was received, which contained the following applications for hereditary membership, passed upon at a meeting of the committee at 10 o'clock:

From George Herbert Holden, Providence, journalist, born at Chicago, Ill., March 30, 1881. He applies in the right of his great-grandfather, Captain and Brevet Major William Allen, First Regiment Rhode Island Continental Infantry, an original member in succession to his uncle, Henry Waterman Holden, who died April 4, 1894.

From William Wheaton Benthall of Vineland, N. J., counsellor-at-law. He applies for hereditary membership in the right of his great-grandfather, Lieutenant Joseph Wheaton, First Rhode Island Continental Infantry, an original member of whom he is the eldest living male descendant, there being no issue surviving in the direct male line.

From Pierce de Stael Olney of San Francisco, Cal., fire underwriter, who was born at Oakland, Cal. He applies for hereditary membership in the right of his great-grandfather, Captain Samuel Snow, First Regiment Rhode Island Continental Infantry, an original member, and in succession to his grandfather, the late James Olney, who died May 13, 1880.

The report was adopted. The marshal, Oliver Hazard Perry, announced the election of the candidates, who were admitted and escorted to their hereditary seats.

The report of Secretary Olney for the past year was read. The report shows an active membership of 57, of whom 46 are hereditary and 11 honorary.

The death of Moses Douville Coburn of Georgia, great-grandson of John Paul Jones's lieutenant, Pierre Douville, was the only casualty recorded during the year.

The committee appointed at the meeting held July 4, 1902, to select a more appropriate setting for the words of "America," by Samuel E. Smith, made its report. The committee issued a circular inviting composers to compete for a gold medal to be awarded by this society, in response to which no fewer than 517 compositions were sent in within the time limit fixed upon and many others too late to be examined. The number of manuscripts submitted and the widespread discussion by the press demonstrated the great interest aroused among both musicians and the general public.

All the compositions received within the time limit were examined by the men invited to act as musical advisers, Dudley Buck, Samuel P. Warren, E. E. Stubbs, Albert R. Gallatin and Professor Horatio Parker of the department of music in Yale University, acting separately. These all expressed the opinion that none of the compositions seemed to possess all the qualities of an absolutely satisfactory setting, but most of them designated one or more as being the best received, although no two of them agreed upon any one piece.

At a meeting of the committee held June 25 the communications of the musical advisers were considered and their selections and a great number of others were examined, when it was unanimously resolved that while in the opinion of the committee no piece, perhaps, possessed all the qualities desired and might not be able to displace the music now in use, yet the one composed by A. E. Johnson merited the award offered and, acting under the powers given them, they assigned to him the medal.

The report of the music committee was accepted.

The committee appointed to apply to the legislature to preserve the battlefield of Butts Hill reported progress.

Last year's officers were re-elected unanimously, as follows:

President—Hon. Asa Bird Gardiner, LL. D., L. H. D.
Vice President—Hon. James Varnum, A. M., LL. B.
Secretary—George W. Olney, LL. B.
Treasurer—William Dehon King, A. M.
Assistant Treasurer—William Blodgett, A. M.

These officers constitute the "standing committee."

Colonel Asa Bird Gardiner, who was re-elected a member of the standing executive committee of the general society, has been re-elected successively each year.

The following were chosen delegates to the general society of the order: Hon. James M. Varnum, Hon. Horatio Rogers, Dr. John Sullivan, William Dehon King, William Paine Sheffield. Alternates—George W. Olney, Edward Aborn Greene, Charles Warren Lippitt, Henry Jackson Brightman, William Watts Sherman.

The president re-appointed as chaplain for the ensuing year Rev. Henry Barton Chapin, D. D., Ph. D., and the meeting adjourned without date.

At the afternoon meeting, after prayer by the chaplain, Colonel Gardiner made an address, in which he said: "To Mr. William Watts Sherman are specially due the thanks of this state society for his painstaking and faithful efforts to obtain a suitable air to be sung at he commemorative meetings of this society."

The Declaration of Independence was read by Rev. Daniel Goodwin, A. M., Ph. D., of East Greenwich.

Augustus Franklin Arnold of Boston, who for 25 years has sung annually at the meeting "The Sword of Bunker Hill," rendered the stirring song to a piano accompaniment played by his son with all his old-time fervor.

Albert Ross Parsons, president of the American College of Musicians, University of the State of New York, delivered an address upon "The Patriotic Music of America." Following Mr. Parsons's address was the singing of the hymn "America," to Mr. Johnstone's new air. The quartet selected to lead the audience comprised the following members: Mrs. E. M. Waterhouse, Mrs. Caroline Loomas, Rev. E. M. Waterhouse, D. B. Linn. Hearty applause greeted the singing of the hymn, and many of those present crowded around the author of the music to offer their congratulations. Mrs. Johnstone was also present. Rev. Alva E. Carpenter pronounced the benediction.

The annual banquet was held at the University Club in the evening, Governor Garvin, General James M. Varnum, Hon. Horatio Rogers, Hon. Samuel P. Smith, Horace F. Horton, Rev. Daniel Goodwin, Hon. Joshua M. Addeman, General Hazard Stevens, ex-Governor Elisha Dyer, Edward Field and Dr. Charles Carroll Bombaugh responding to toasts.

RECEIVED IN COURT CIRCLES.

Mrs. Mary H. Hunt to Sail From Europe After a Three Months' Stay.

BOSTON, July 6.—Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, the international leader of the temperance education movement, is booked to sail from London to reach her home in Boston early in July.

In response to an invitation from the minister of the interior in Germany, on behalf of the ninth international anti-alcohol congress, lately in session at Bremen, conveyed through Baron Von Sternberg, the German minister at Washington, Mrs. Hunt, with letters of credit from Secretary Hay of the United States Department of State, has been in Europe for the past three months.

Mrs. Hunt has been received in the highest court circles, and her message has awakened profound interest in those who in searching for the secret of the strength and power of the United States have discovered that the greater sobriety of its people is an important cause, and that the chief factor of this greater sobriety has been the scientific total abstinence education in its public schools.

The Empress of Germany, anxious to hear the story from the American woman herself, invited Mrs. Hunt to the palace for a long audience, expressing the most profound interest in what is being done for this form of education in America.

FOR INCREASE OF WAGES.

Stationary Firemen in Ballston Paper Mills Go Out on Strike.

BALLSTON, N. Y., July 6.—The stationary firemen employed in the mills of the Union Bag & Paper Company in this village struck today for an eight-hour day at the existing scale of wages, calling for three shifts instead of two, and, in fact, an increase in the wage scale of 33 per cent.

SEVERAL PEOPLE MISSING.

Red River, in Texas, Continues to Rise Rapidly.

BONHAM, Texas, July 6.—The Red river continues to rise rapidly, and is 10 feet higher than the previous record. Several people are reported missing from various points, but no one is known positively to have been drowned. The damage to crops has been very heavy.

BOTTOM LANDS INUNDATED.

Five Feet of Water in Streets of Leesville, Caused by Cloudburst.

GONZALES, Texas, July 6.—A cloudburst at Leesville has put five feet of water in the streets. Many houses were partially wrecked, as their foundations were washed away. A prisoner who was turned out of jail was drowned. The Guadeloupe river has a 19-foot rise, and is going up a foot and a half an hour. Bottom lands are inundated.

A BIG EXCURSION DAY.

There was a good gathering of excursionists here Saturday, as the weather favored and people were anxious to get out. The Island road brought large crowds and was unable satisfactorily to accommodate them. The City of Lowell brought about 1,300 from New London and vicinity, the Providence line boats had large crowds, the Boston excursion train brought in 835 and the Pontiac and other vessels also brought parties here. The beach was crowded in the afternoon, the restaurant was swamped with business, and the cars were packed, women standing on the footboards. It was a big day, and an orderly crowd on the beach. Both sections were open, and the life patrol was out for the first time.

Sunday was another fairly good-sized one at the beach, though there were not so many excursionists in town.

Saturday the Plymouth brought an excursion party through the harbor, but none landed.

WHY WE SHAKE HANDS.

[Harper's Weekly.]

The Prussian officer who held it his duty to kill a mere soldier who offered to shake hands with him had, from the official Prussian point of view, a complete case. Handshaking implies a certain degree of equality, and it is not possible for a Prussian officer to imagine any equal except another Prussian officer. Clearly, any act suggesting such a thing could not be expiated by any punishment short of the immediate death of the offender.

The custom of handshaking dates back to prehistoric times, a relic of those savage days when strangers could not meet without suspicion of murderous purpose. Then all men went abroad with weapons, and shields, and when they met would stand in pleasant converse, each with his shield upon his left arm and with right hands clasped, so that there would be no chance for a sudden swing of the knife or bludgeon. The right hand was invariably used for the weapon, with the result that we are a right-handed race. The reason for this lay undoubtedly in the fact that the left arm was always employed in the important work of shielding the heart. Among the common people of the Aryan race the old pledge of amity in yielding the right hand to be grasped and held has since remained the chief token of open friendship. In the Iliad returning chiefs were "greeted with extended hands." Even at that remote day the early significance of the handclasp had been lost in the nobler meaning of civilized life. But it remains a salutation in which a greater or less degree of equality is claimed or conceded. It is therefore possible for a humble person to shake hands with the President of the United States, but not with an officer of the Prussian army.

FRUIT AT THE BREAKFAST TABLE

Nature Provides its own remedies which, if used judiciously insure perfect health at all times

Aside from the pleasure of eating seasonable fruits before beginning the first meal of the day, this custom has undoubtedly arisen from the well known fact that nearly all fruit and more particularly plums and PRUNES contain natural laxative principles which act directly on the stomach and bowels.

Constipation, that dread and troublesome complaint which is undoubtedly the basic cause of nine-tenths of the dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, etc., so prevalent among our people to-day, and, which if neglected, surely leads to more complicated and serious organic diseases, can surely be prevented, and when not too far advanced, can be absolutely cured by the judicious use of the modern laxative and cathartic California Prune Wafers.

They are not a patent medicine in the ordinary sense of the word, being compounded from fresh California Prunes, which every intelligent person knows is truly nature's laxative.

A dainty little wafer, always the same, compounded in a highly concentrated form from fresh California Prunes, they are a natural dissolvent, acting on the contents of the stomach and bowels and not on the organs themselves.

They regulate the Liver and Stomach, Cleanse the System and Purify the Blood, Cure all Bowel Troubles, Biliousness, Bad Breath, Bad Blood, Wind on the Stomach, Blotted Bowels, Foul Mouth, Headache, Indigestion, Pimples and Dizziness.

Every household should have its family package of CALIFORNIA PRUNE WAFERS, and at the first signs of approaching illness, or when under the weather, take a couple of wafers, and the doctor's bills will soon be much smaller than they are now.

10—The level of prices was very little changed by the opening trade action from Friday evening prices. Only a few orders were exchanged when the ticker came to a standstill. Smelting fell off ¾, Brooklyn Transit ⅝ and Amalgamated ½. Changes generally were to a lower level.

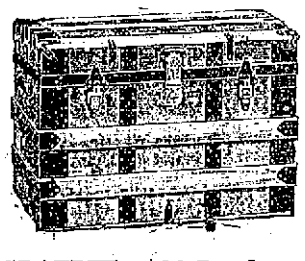

11—Selling of the specialties caused weakness in the railroad list, but buying orders soon appeared for the coalers and western stocks and they advanced a fraction above last week's close. Amalgamated, Smelting and Brooklyn Transit fell 1 @ 1⅛, with partial recoveries. Colorado Fuel was bought freely and rose 2¼ and Northwestern, after declining a point, rallied 2. Chicago Great Western preferred B gained 1 and Delaware & Hudson 1¼.

NOON—Money on call, steady, at 3 @ 3½ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 5½ @ ¾. There was slight but hardening movement, which carried Norfolk & Western and Twin City Rapid Transit a point over last week, and some other railroad stocks a large fraction. The trading continued very apathetic. Bonds were irregular.

SUNDAY LIQUOR SELLING.

Police Made a Thorough Inspection of the City and Found Some Places Open.

Sunday being the first in July, the liquor dealers who have been looking for some summer trade on Sunday decided that it was time to open up, and it looked as though there might be something doing. But under orders from the Police Commission a number of night men were called out, and with Captain Garnett and the sergeants made a very close and thorough inspection of the town, wherever it was known that liquor was being sold. These visits spread consternation about town and most places closed up. All did not close but watchers were set, and the report of the police for the week ending July 9, to be made to the Police Commission at its meeting next Friday evening, ought to keep the typewriter at the Police Station busy for some time. One man who has no license, but was caught by the captain bottling beer, was so badly frightened that he dumped his bottled product overboard, and successful fishermen had catches of bottled beer free.

LIVELY ROW IN A SMALL BOAT.

There was a lively marine row off Long wharf Saturday afternoon, in which three sailors from a fishing vessel were the first performers, and a number assisted in the grand finale. Moses Tally, a burly cook, assaulted Benjamin L. Witham and Charles Sipple, two sailors from the same vessel, as the three were going aboard in a small boat. Tally was apparently crazy with drink and knocked the others about with a boathook. They were rescued, badly battered, by other fishermen. Then Tally proceeded to knock the boat to pieces.

Attempts were made to lasso the man, but he fought every one off until a boat from the Training Station came along and Uncle Sam's tars showed that they still knew how to fight, by conquering him. He was tied up securely, as sailors know how to tie, and hoisted on Long wharf, where the patrol took him in. By this time all the fight was out of him. He asked to be untied and went into the wagon as meekly as a lamb. It cost him $32.50 in all, when the court had passed sentence.

ONLY ONE FIRE ALARM.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday evening the fire alarm rang out for the first time during the Fourth. The indicators in the engine houses announced 63 on the first round, but there being no such box the majority of the apparatus waited in the houses for the second round, which registered box 53, at the corner of East Bowery and Freebody streets. The apparatus responding made fast time and at the box was directed by the house on the corner of Middleton and Weaver avenues, occupied by Mrs. McCarty. It was found that there had been a fire on the roof but this had been extinguished and the department was not required. Hose 1 went well down to 62, this being the only 6 box, before the mistake was discovered.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR.

The Providence Sunday Journal, under the heading "Who Would be the Strongest Republican Candidate for Governor," prints a picture of Hon. Frederick P. Garrettson of this city, with those of General William Ames, Colonel R. H. I. Goddard, George L. Shepley, George H. Utter, Frank E. Holden, Joseph P. Burlingame and Rathbone Gardner. Colonel William P. Sheffield, Jr., is announced by a Washington county Republican as his second choice to George H. Utter. The suggestion of Mr. Garrettson comes from two Newport Republicans.

HOUSEKEEPING IN ROME.

[Maud Howe, in Lippincott's.]

People who would be called well off in America are rich in Rome; people we consider poor can live here with much comfort and some luxury. For instance, cabs cost 16 cents a course for two people, or 40 cents an hour. I pay my seamstress 50 cents a day and my cook $7 a month; a clever young Italian doctor, modern, up-to-date, well educated, is quite satisfied with $1 a visit. Good hotels (not the two or three most extravagant) charge 12 francs (about $2.40) a day. Meat, chickens, eggs, fish, fruit and vegetables are cheap; but all imported groceries are horribly dear by reason of the 50 per cent duty they must pay. Coffee costs 50 cents a pound, sugar 20. American kerosene oil is sold in five-gallon cans for $3—fancy! we pay more for petroleum than for olive oil or for wine. Postage stamps, salt and tobacco (all government monopolies—are sold only at tobacconists'.

Milk is not cheap; the best in Rome comes from Prince Doria's herd of Jerseys. Unfortunately, we are not on his milkman's route; our milk comes from the Villa Ada, which belongs to an American lady, a daughter of Rogers, the sculptor. It is very good milk, quite different from that we get at a pinch from the carcaria round the corner, where in a dark, dreadful dungeon stable pale cows with long, untrimmed hoofs pass their melancholy lives. Pompilia is in despair because we will drink our milk unboiled; when I saw the prisoner cows I understood why. Italy is a poor country, and poor people can live comfortably here. Rents, servants, and food are all cheap; it may be a paltry reason for abandoning one's country that one can get more pork for one's shilling elsewher, but it is a potent reason.

Here in Rome prices are all scaled to the different pockets. I pay less at the same shops for the same things than my rich friends pay, but some things even the rich cannot secure: certain conveniences—rapid transit, steam heat, "rapid delivery," express service—cannot be purchased, and, what is really serious, good schooling is not to be had at any price, so few Americans with children to educate settle in Rome. But for men and women there is no school like Rome. Willy nilly, I learn something every time I go out-of-doors, whether it be to the Appian Way, the Via Sacra, the Forum, or to the Corso. The yellow Tiber, the fountains, the nightingales of the Villa Medici, the ilex trees of the Borghese, seem to whisper the secrets of the city with the mighty past, the mother and law-giver of nations.

THE FOURTH IN NEWPORT.

Beautiful Weather and Large Crowds to See the Sights.

City Program Not Elaborate But Varied Enough to Suit Many Tastes.

No one could have asked for or had better weather for the Fourth of July celebration. It was very seasonable, but enought to drive people from neighboring cities, but with the heat tempered by a wind at the seashore which made it very comfortable. There was no sign of rain during the day, and no one had anything, at least so far as the weather was concerned, to interfere with a full enjoyment of the day. Here in Newport everybody seemed to be getting all the pleasure possible out of the holiday. The city was thronged with excursionists and the storekeepers, street cars and carriage drivers had plenty of business.

The city program, although not elaborate, was arranged to suit a variety of tastes and succeeded well in its purpose. The day opened with a salute, not at sunrise, but an hour and a half later, when nearly everybody had been awakened by the small boy with his firecrackers and other explosives. A half-hour later came the ringing of the church bells, at 10 o'clock the cutter race in the harbor was the great attraction, and a little later in the morning there was a ball game. At noon there were more salutes and bell ringing, in the early afternoon the athletic sports, then the parade, and a band concert on Touro Park, and more ball games. At 6 o'clock there was more bell ringing and at sunset a final salute. The evening band concerts were started early, and the fireworks, the final part of the program, were not set off until after the concerts, being displayed on the harbor front, where the many wharves gave everybody a chance to see them.

The Island cars and regular steamboats brought many to the city, special boats and trains added large numbers, and the streets were well filled during the day and evening with a lively, jolly crowd, all of whom were evidently intent upon making the most of the day, and generally succeeding. The numerous yachts and other vessels in the harbor were dressed in many flags in honor of the occasion and the harbor presented a pleasing spectacle. In the evening fireworks were sent off from many of the yachts, adding materially to the city's display.

There was less drunkenness on the streets than usual, and the police had but comparatively little to do for a holiday. The firemen had but one call, and that not for a serious fire. The beach was well patronized during the day and the street cars were taxed to their utmost to carry all their patrons. Many Newporters who did not care for the noise of the celebration went on excursions across the bay or into the country and secured the desired quiet and a thorough coat of sunburn.

HIBERNIANS WON.

Father Mathew Second and Scandinavians Last in a Fast Cutter Race.

As usual when a twelve-oared cutter race is on that proved to be the sporting attraction of the day. Long before the hour set spectators had preempted the points of vantage on Long wharf and along Washington street and the shore beyond, wherever a good view of the course, or a part of it, could be had, and before the race started all three piers of the steamboat wharves were black with people, as were Fort Greene and other points of vantage. All sorts of craft, from a tiny skiff, hardly big enough for one, to the Solicitor and the U. S. Caswell, were out, each with a full complement; some seemed to have more than a full complement, as there were so many on board that many could not see the whole contest.

The conditions were good. The water was comparatively smooth, with just enough ruffle from the northeast wind to make going in sailing craft good, while rowboats were not bothered. The sun shone brightly and it was hot, though the cool breeze made one forget that on the water. There had been some talk of one of the crews not starting, but when the ladies' boat reached the dolphin at the south end of the Torpedo Station all three boats were well out to the same point. The coxswains drew for positions and the crews lined up as follows, beginning next the dolphin: 1, Scandia, Coxswain Petersen; 2, Hibernia, Coxswain Shea; 3, Silver Jubilee, Coxswain Cain.

There was no delay at the start except that necessary to clear the course, the coxswains holding their boats well in line till the word was given and the gun fired, when the three boats changed at once from absolute quiet to the most active condition of the day. The start of the "Tabs" and Hibernians was very nearly even, the Scandinavians not getting off so quickly as their more experienced competitors. Immediately after the start the three crews settled down to steady strokes with power in them and the Hibernians had the better of it going up, with the Tabs right in the running.

Coxswain Cain steered the best course, and Coxswain Petersen the poorest, the Scandinavian boat being brought over into the Hibernian's water. Near Elm street the Scandinavians seemed to let up somewhat in the power of their stroke and dropped to third place. As they approached the turn it was seen how far the Scandinavians had wandered from their course, for they had to row at a right angle to the line to reach their buoy, which appeared to have drifted some. This put them out of the race and left the struggle to those old opponents, the Hibernian and Father Mathew crews.

It seemed as though the boats would never turn, but finally after many oar strokes had been watched by the many eyes looking up the harbor the green boat was seen to turn, followed a few seconds later by the blue. The latter was the quicker on the turn and both were straightened away for the finish as the brown boat of the Scandinavians began to turn, making the craft practically 30 seconds behind the green boat at the buoys. The Hibernians had the lead and held it to the finish, meeting every spurt of the blue boat with one that held the lead established as the boats got well started on the homeward journey.

There was the usual rush of all sorts of craft to get a good view of the finish, but fortunately all were to the west of the course and the racers came home over clear water amid the cheering of the crowds all along the line. This cheering was redoubled or quadrupled as the green Hibernian boat swept across the finish line three lengths in advance of the blue Father Mathew boat; winning by 8 seconds. The Scandinavians, though so badly left at the turn, rowed pluckily to the finish, without the spurt that a closer race would give them, and finished in good style.

The start was at the dolphin, the course to and around buoys above St. Patrick's buoy, and then back to the south side of Long wharf, a good two miles, and the longest pulled with a turn in the time considering the distance fastest ever made, being Hibernians, 16 minutes 16 Father Mathew, 16 minutes 41 onds; Scandinavians, 16 nds, seconds. The Hibernians thus first and the Father Mathew this prize. The judges were Surgeon Drs. Ramsay and Beck and Gr Morgan.

The three crews that raced were the three best that ever went over the course, judging by the time and the way they rowed. Had the Scandinavian boat held a true course and kept on an equality with the other boats on the distance rowed the race would have been much closer and the results might have been changed some, for the crew rowed a pretty stroke and on a straightaway course would have done much better work, so far as records went.

SOLDIERS AND SAILOR BOYS.

Regulars from Fort Adams and Apprentices from the Station Make a Fine Showing.

The parade feature of the day was one which gave the committee considerable trouble, and at one time there was a question if there would be a parade. The difficulties were finally surmounted, and thanks to Uncle Sam a very creditable showing was made, Fort Adams sending over two companies, numbering about 150 men, and the Training Station about 450 boys, divided into six companies. In addition were the Hibernian Rifles, few in numbers, but having the distinction of being the only local command in line.

The line was formed on lower Broadway and moved shortly after 2 o'clock over a route of march which occupied about an hour an a half. A good cool breeze did much for the comfort of the marchers. Along the streets through which the parade passed large numbers of spectators were gathered, though the city was not so crowded with strangers as in some years.

The line comprised in detail a platoon of police, in command of Sergeant Gilfeather; Lieutenant Howard R. Peckham of Middletown, formerly of the Newport Artillery, chief marshal, and his staff—First Lieutenant Frank P. King, adjutant Newport Artillery, chief of staff; Captain F. S. Patterson, First Lieutenant S. H. Hazard and First Lieutenant A. T. Bailey, Newport Artillery, Colonel Charles R. Allison, Army and Navy Union—the Newport Band, Professor Webber leader, in their white coats; two companies of United States coast artillery, under command of Captain Mauldin, in blouses and fatigue caps; the Training Station band, under direction of Bandmaster Wood; the Training Station battalion, commanded by Lieutenant W. C. Asserson, the boys being in white duck uniform, armed as infantry, and attended by the Station ambulance and a water wagon, and the Hibernian Rifles, commanded by Captain Edward McCarthy, in their full dress uniform. There were no carriages with public officials. On Broadway the line passed in review before Mayor Boyle and members of the city government, who gathered at the City Hall, and at the Court House the line was reviewed by the chief marshal and dismissed.

PLENTY OF WIND.

Fewer Starters Than Expected in the Catboat Race. But All Finished Without Mishap.

The catboat race in the afternoon did not bring out so large a field of starters as had been expected, especially in the two larger classes, probably because some of the boats are not yet ready to race, as the fitting out of boats has been greatly delayed by the weather. The start was also later than had been arranged, a mark having to be set after the wind changed. When the boats got away they had a good, fair wholesale breeze from the southeast that sent them over the course in good time, and gave all the boats about all the wind they needed for comfort. All that started finished without mishap, though just before the start the P. W. ran into the Fleet Wing, and it was feared had put her out of commission. Captain Falvey, however, was out for a race, and when he found his boat was not leaking he pluckily followed the others in his class. The new Brownell boat Stroller was entered, but did not start. The Cinch, which raced in the third class, belongs in Jamestown, and went over the course, but was not in the race, the course being to Taylor's Point.

AN OLD-TIME CROWD.

In the Seventh the South Ends Opened Up and Won from the Favorites.

The sporting attraction of the afternoon was certainly the ball game on the old polo grounds, between the South Ends and the Favorites of Fall River. A gathering that must have numbered from 2,500 to 3,000 enclosed the entire playing field and reminded one of the old days on Morton park, when the Ends and Newports and "Rubber Stockers" played; but Morton Park, with its shade trees made a prettier picture than the new field. The crowd was inclined to press in on the playing field and several times there was a delay while the people were moved back. It was a regular holiday crowd, anxious to see the home team win and enthusiastic in applause of every good play, and of every hit by the South Ends.

It must be acknowledged that in the early part of the game the applause was chiefly for the fielding and Maguire's strike outs; for the visitors took the lead at the start, scoring in the first half of the first and again in the first of the fifth, sharp play marking the work on both sides. In the fifth the South Ends broke the ice, Maguire getting a home-run hit to left that set the crowd wild with delight. In the sixth the visitors added another, and as it proved their last run. In the seventh the home team opened upon Pitcher Carey and settled the game. Two doubles, two singles and a three-bagger scored five runs and gave the home team the game.

Perhaps there was no noise while this was in progress; but it was finally all over, and Kelly went into the box for Fall River in the eighth and proved a mystery. In the ninth the visitors came near scoring again, but good battery work held them down and the South Ends had won their first victory on their new grounds with an out of town club. The pitching of Maguire and timely stick work did the trick. The score:

A NEW CHAMPION.

John Giles Wins from the Veteran William Fallon In the Hammer Throwing.

The chief interest in the sports on the old polo lot in the afternoon was in the hammer throwing. A new candidate appeared to wrest the honors from the veteran Fallon, who has long held the undisputed championship, and the new man proved that he knew the sport by taking first prize. The winners in the various events were as follows:

100-yards dash—Thomas Ebbitt, Patrick Connell.

Hop, step and jump—James Sullivan, Thomas Ebbitt.

Boys' race—Martin Kerins, Thomas O'Brien.

Running long jump—James Sullivan, Thomas Ebbitt.

Throwing 16-pound hammer—John Giles, William Fallon.

Three-legged race—Oscar Schultz and James Sullivan, Dennis Sullivan and Thomas Ebbitt.

In the base ball games at the polo ground the South Ends defeated the Volunteers, 14 to 4. Batteries, Sullivan and Hogan, Ebbitt and Millington. On the Gladding lot the Newports defeated the Clover Leafs, 15 to 10. Batteries, Gladding and Sullivan, Cleary and Mahoney.

CONCERTS AND FIREWORKS.

Large Gatherings to Hear the Music by the Bands and See the City's Displays.

The band concerts drew good-sized gatherings everywhere. The afternoon concert by the Newport Military Band on Touro Park was noticeable for the absence of noise, the small boy being somewhere else. In the evening the Training Station Band was at Battery Park, the Newport Band on the Mall, and the Newport Military Band on Morton Park, and all had good-sized gatherings. The early hours for the concerts were popular, as people could get home early.

After the concerts came the fireworks, on King Park and the City wharf, both easily seen from the harbor. The fireworks at each were of good quality, and made in the fine moonlight a pretty showing. The night was a fine one for viewing the display and enjoying the open air.

DEATH OF MRS. RITCHIE.

Mr. Whitney Warren received news Saturday of the death at Ashwell, Rutlandshire, England, of his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. Wadsworth Ritchie, of blood poisoning. Mrs. Warren had received news a week before of her sister's illness and left early in the week for England.

Mrs. Ritchie was Miss Emily Mead Tooker, daughter of Gabriel Mead Tooker, and was married in this city August 24, 1895. She had lived in England for the greater part of the time since her marriage, but had frequently visited her sister, Mrs. Warren. Mrs. Ritchie and Mrs. Warren each inherited a large fortune from their mother, who died several years before Mrs. Ritchie's marriage.

AT FREEBODY PARK THIS WEEK.

A good bill is offered at Freebody Park this week, which includes a few old favorites and a number of new acts which have proved worthy of applause in the metropolitan theatres.

Jessie Couthoui won the spurs of success here two years ago, when she made a hit, and it is to be expected that she has many new stories and songs. Newport will be the only city outside of New York to see Dan Sherman and Mabel DeForrest in "The Last of the Regiment" this season, for they are engaged for the summer at Hammerstein's Paradise Roof Gardens, and are loaned to Manager Sheedy for this week only. This is said to be the liveliest laughing act in vaudeville at the present time. The Five Juggling Johnsons' club-juggling act is another New York success, and they, too, will return from here to that city for the rest of the summer. All the other acts, many and varied, have been selected with care. Those who attend this afternoon or evening cannot fail of being pleased.

The Oriental artizans, Geisha girls and Japanese entertainers are now all here, and the opening of the Japanese Inge will in all probability occur tonight.

THE ANIMAL REFUGE.

The following is the report of the Newport Animal Refuge for the month of June: June 1 there were in the Refuge 6 cats, 3 dogs and 1 rabbit. During the month 22 sick or homeless cats were sent for, and 13 others were brought in. Homes were found for 5, and 51 cats were destroyed. Nine dogs were received; homes were found for 5, and the other 4 were destroyed. One bird was received and destroyed. Eight cats, 3 dogs and one rabbit are at present in the home.

A few improvements have been made for the better lighting and ventilating of the animals' sleeping quarters. At the entertainment given for the benefit of the Refuge $218 was cleared.

THREE SAILORS INJURED.

Schooner Monarch of the Gloucester fishing fleet arrived here yesterday morning, with two members of her crew seriously injured in a collision of the schooner with one of her small boats, off No Man's Land. When the boat was struck the men, Malcolm McDonald and Edward Bishop, jumped for the schooner and were caught between the larger vessel's bobstay and the small boat. The Monarch came at once to Newport and the injured men were taken to the hospital, where it was found that McDonald had two ribs and Bishop one rib broken. McDonald belongs in Prince Edward Island and Bishop in Nova Scotia.

Later in the day schooner Brigantan arrived at Newport with a member of her crew suffering with a broken leg, having broken it with a boat's painter. His name was Angus McDonald, and he was also removed to the hospital for treatment.

From February 1 to July 1 this year the enormous number of 410,414,064 passengers was carried on the elevated cars of New York, or 31,889,126 more than last year for the same period.
